

Harriet Morris

The 30 Day Body Image Coach

After seeing herself on video one day in 2019 and loathing what she saw, Harriet nevertheless knew instinctively there must be a better way than the hate-yourself-into-change solution of the diet industry. Thus was born The Body Confident Project, which helps real women become unapologetically visible in less than a month, by helping them tap into their inner cavewoman and building the 2 key components of healthy body image: self-acceptance and resilience.

An experienced binge eating coach, Harriet also hosts two podcasts; The Eating Coach (200k downloads to date) and Harry Potter Saved My Life, which uses the characters and spells from JK Rowling's magical universe as inspiration to help anyone suffering from anxiety or depression.

info@theshiftinside.com

00 44 778 62 855 92

theshiftinside.com/body

harrypottersavedmylife.com

facebook.com/theshiftinside/

IG: @bodyconfidentproject

Praise

I can't believe how good I feel!
I'm much more active & have lost interest in food because of this project.

Rachel Lansdale, Scotland

I took my 3-year-old swimming for the first time ever because of working with Harriet. Now it's easy to look in the mirror and say "I look great"

Lynn, Eire

Areas of Expertise

How social media can improve body image

Building teenage body confidence

Vogue vs body positivity: the third way

How to silence your inner critic

Available to Comment On:

The link between social media & poor body image

The beauty industry's role in the obesity epidemic

How lockdown affects body image

Improving women's visibility at work

As Featured In...

